Noting Thursday's exhibits of the Lexington Fair, The Frankfort State Journal says: "One of the best show rings seen during the afternoon was the pair of bay mares owned by Langhorn T. Anderson of Maysville. They are called Smart and Ultra Smart. For some reason Fagin Brothers did not show Kate Hamilton and her mate in this ring, and the pair owned by Mr. Anderson had a walkover.
They alone were worth the price of admission, and they will be here at the Fair."

A Few Words to Shoe Buyers

When we added Men's and Boys' Shoes to our business some years since we pursued the same policy that we have carried out for years, viz.: To buy only the products of the best manufacturers in the land. Here you find Hanan, Walkover, Nettleton, Douglas and Barker Brown Shoes, the first four named the very acme of gentlemen's footwear, the last named, Barker Brown, the best work shoe made in the world. Particular care is exercised in our selection of Boys' Shoes. There are two unique features in our shoe business: One, that no shoe house in the State has as many of the best line strictly confined to them, by reason that we sell more than enough of each line to justify this. The other is that we warrant every pair, including shiny leathers, to give reasonable satisfaction. We want to add YOU to our shoe patrons.

THE BEST REMEDY

For Women—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Noah, Ky. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from headaches, nervous prostration, and hemorrhages. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong, so that I can do all my housework, and attend to the store and post-office, and feel much younger than I really am."

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most successful remedy for all kinds of female troubles, and I feel that I can never praise it enough." — Mrs. LIZZIE HOLLAND, Noah, Ky.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

TREMENDOUS DOWNPOUR

Accompanied By Loud Peals of Thunder

An Awe-Inspiring Electrical Display—Elements at War ---A Night of Horror

This city and vicinity were visited Saturday night and Sunday by the most violent rain and electrical storm that has been witnessed here in years—only once, in April, 1908, has it been surpassed, when disaster on a larger scale followed in its wake.

The storm of Saturday night was preceded by portentous clouds, dark and lowering, with vivid flashes of lightning and peals of rumbling thunder. Between 10 and 11 o'clock the flood gates of heaven opened and a deluge of rain began falling that was fearful to behold, certain parts of the city being flooded and streets converted into veritable rivers.

As was the case seventeen months ago, the residence of Mr. Sant Brooks in West Third street and the dwellings on the North side of Third street and the houses in Grave alley were more or less inundated, presenting scenes of heart-rending desolation and destruction.

As on the former occasion, Mr. Brooks' residence was made a spillway and outlet for the great volume of water that issued forth from the old and antiquated sewer.

The water, four feet deep, ran like a milltail through the house, passing out the windows and doorway, carrying everything movable in its path before it and endangering the lives and marooning the family in the second story of the building.

Verily, it was a night of dread and horror, especially for the inmates of the Brooks home.

Willing hands set to work yesterday morning cleaning out the debris left by the muddy water on the first floor, and scarce had the work begun when at 11 o'clock another heavy rain set in and there was almost a repetition of the sad havoc of the night previous.

Rains Bros., grain merchants, who sustained a big loss in the overflow of April, 1908, escaped serious damage this time by a closer margin, as did Mr. Frederick, Mr. Donohue and Mr. Sidwell, occupying cottages near by. Amelia Sikes, colored, on the corner of the alley, did not fare so well, the water making a chute of her front door and passing out in the rear. The water was several inches deep on her floor and did considerable damage to household goods. The unfortunates on the West side of Grave alley were likewise drowned out.

Mr. James Redmond, Mr. J. C. Pecor, the Misses Heiser, Mr. Fred Williams, Malone's livery stable and J. H. Dodson & Son, who were overflowed and greatly damaged in 1908, were lucky in escaping the water's encroachment Saturday night and yesterday.

While all the streams in the Western part of the county were high, no serious results are reported.

Along the source of Cabin and Kennedy creeks, however, there is reported great damage and loss of live stock, barns, fencing and outbuildings.

Southern Life Insurance.

From time to time there comes along a substantial testimonial of the South's financial progress. Development is a word constantly increasing in usage in our vocabulary. Opportunities that were once permitted to come and go unheeded are now caught and nailed down. Languid indifference more frequently than formerly gets a jolt from aggressiveness and the Southern business world profits as a result of the encounter.

A striking illustration of this latter-day tendency to curb suspicion of enterprise and welcome Southern progress came recently with the announcement that plans are under way for the organization of a great life insurance company for the South, with headquarters in Kentucky. It is significant that the proposition has been received by the many as seriously as it was launched by the few sincerely as it was. Twenty, ten or even five years ago the announcement would have met with scant welcome. Today it seems to have been received with a cordiality not unmixed with enthusiasm. Men recognized in it an agency of benefit for both Kentucky and the South and consequently a personal friend.

The moment the swaddling clothes were ripped off the Citizens' National Life Insurance Company—an organization which is to have $5,000,000 of capital stock and $5,000,000 of surplus—people began to lift up their heads and take notice. Since then, it is declared, letters and telegrams have poured in on the promoters from every section of the South—actually wishing God-speed to the enterprise. That the interest has not been limited to merely those sentiment, is demonstrated by the substantial financial support proffered with every arrival of the mail.

The man who is even more than a casual student of current events is impressed when introduced to the magnitude of the life insurance business in the United States. Out of apparently bewildering volumes of statistics he can readily gain, however, a conception, dazzling in impressiveness and particularly useful in an understandable contemplation of the real meaning to the territory South of the Mason and Dixon line of the establishment therein of the proposed Citizens' National Life.

It is well to bear in mind that the East in particular has until most recent years enjoyed what may almost be described as a monopoly of the life insurance business. While Easterners have drawn with tremendous profit to themselves the money from Southern policy-holders, they must also be credited with possessing increasing faith in life insurance.

In 1873 the total amount in policies reported to the New York Insurance Department was $2,086,027.173. This total had increased at the end of 1908 to $10,623,733,785. New York City's life insurance assets aggregated in 1908 $1,725,000,000. Hartford, Conn., had a population of 80,000. It had life insurance assets in 1908 of $260,000,000. Montpelier, Vt., has a population of 7,000, and in 1908 had life insurance assets of $44,000,000, or $6,428 per capita. These figures, however, do not convey their full significance until contrasted with Louisville's aggregate life insurance assets in 1908 of about $2,000,000 with a population of about 250,000.

There is no end to the evidence that life insurance business is profitable for a community. We are wont to turn eternally to New York when we study things financial. One prominent New York company twenty years ago had a little over $6,000,000 of assets. Its statement showed assets in 1908 of $236,000,000, and the assets have probably increased to about a quarter of a billion dollars today. Four prominent metropolitan life insurance companies in 1908 had a total income of $337,837,188. Allowing three hundred business days for the year, this means that these four companies alone pumped through the arteries of New York City's financial and business system last year upwards of $1,126,000 every day. Indianapolis, which is only a little over 100 miles from Louisville, has something like twenty insurance companies, and the business in Indiana has been growing fast.

The amount paid for life insurance premiums in Kentucky last year was $7,275,822, and the South is now paying out for life insurance about sixty millions of dollars annually.

Kentucky should have a big life insurance company. It is the first Southern State to offer to policy-holders the guarantee of a compulsory reserve deposit law. The statute now in effect was enacted March 24, 1906. It provides that every domestic life insurance company must deposit with the State Treasurer for the security and benefit of all its policy-holders, an amount equal to or greater than the ascertained net cash value of all such company's policies in force. It is worthy of note that the men who fought for this law were the managers of the Citizens' Life Insurance Company and the same gentlemen who are now promoting the Citizens' National Life.

The plan in brief of the Citizens' National Life Insurance Company is first to merge into it the Citizens' Life Insurance Company. As already indicated, the same men who, during the past five years have made life insurance history through the exceptional development of the latter company, are the guiding spirits of the new organization. The further purpose of the new company is to take over other companies of the South and elsewhere which may decide to discontinue business or may find it more profitable to consolidate with a company of great strength. There seems to be nothing impracticable about the plan, nor does it appear where anything but advantage can come to the policy-holders and stockholders of the Citizens' Life or any other companies which may be merged into the new company. No doubt the stockholders will see to it that a thoroughly equitable arrangement is carried out for the exchange of holdings in any existing company for stock in the new corporation. It is pointed out to policy-holders of the Citizens' Life in particular—and the same conditions must apply to the policy-holders of any other company merged into the big company—that the consolidation will mean to them insurance in one of the strongest companies in the country, and, for that matter, in the world.

There are purchasers of life insurance who do not care, particularly for a big company. Some on the other hand will insure in no other kind, but no one objects specially to a big company when seeking life insurance protection. Thus the new company will not only secure business from those who are content to buy insurance from a small company, but to those who want to purchase very large or even small policies and demand great financial strength, it will stand the severest test. But there is a deep interest and significance to the general public in the organization of a ten million dollar insurance company in the South and an added local interest when it is considered that Kentucky will be the home office of the company. Mr. W. H. Gregory, President of the Citizens' Life and one of the guiding geniuses in the advancement of the new company, has in a recent letter to the policy-holders of his own company called particular attention to what might be styled the Southern phase of the situation. The points cannot be well stated more clearly, and we quote from his letter:

"The tremendous power gained by Southern people in the organization of this company is the check it will put on the flow of millions of dollars annually in life insurance premiums from the South to the North and East. I believe confidently that this will be one of the greatest things ever done financially for the South."

"The South is coming to the front. It is making more progress than any other section of the country. Southern people have been awakened to the great power they have, once they band together. Take other lines of business—the cotton mills, for instance. The South once sent its cotton to New England. There it was manufactured and sent back and sold at a good profit. The South paid the freight to New England on the raw material, paid the freight back on the finished products and paid the manufacturer in New England a profit on the goods handled and capital invested, to say nothing of the millions and millions of dollars left there to pay Northern labor. But it is changing the order of things. The capital of twenty-one millions once invested in cotton mills in the South has in recent years increased to three hundred millions. The people of the South at one time did not appreciate just what the cotton crop amounted to, and I dare say some do not yet appreciate just what it means. Some probably do not know that every panic this country has experienced in years has been checked and stopped by the cotton crop. The people who raise cotton are a power. And they are beginning to realize it. And, likewise, Southern people are beginning to realize their power in the insurance world.

"The thing that we wish to accomplish now is to have a company strong enough to take care of the immense volume of business in the South. You can appreciate just what that means. At the time the Citizens' Life was organized, the Southern life insurance companies had practically no business on their books. You may be surprised, therefore, when I tell you that the Southern companies today are carrying nearly one-third of a billion of dollars of life insurance. The amount is stupendous, yet it is only about 3 per cent. of the total amount of insurance carried in the United States."

"The big banks of the North and East have been built up largely by life insurance money, with the South all these years paying the freight, as it were, and the banks themselves have in turn been a powerful factor in the commercial development of the North and East. Yet the South pays out enough money each year in premiums for life insurance to build up some of the strongest banks in the world in the South."

The business associates and the friends of Mr. Gregory, Mr. Helm Bruce, Mr. Charles D. Pearce and the other gentlemen who are striving industriously for the success of this great enterprise have confidence in their ability to carry it out. Kentucky will apparently have every good reason to pride herself on being able to furnish the home for the company. But greatest good will come to the largest number by people of the South being able to lay proud claim to one more great and powerful institution, destined to go through generations to come as a monument erected to Southern development and enterprise.

FINE DAIRY STOCK.
Holstein-Friesians at the Kentucky State Fair.

The Holstein-Friesian has long been known to Kentuckians as a great milk producer, but there has been no concerted action among the breeders of this dairy cow in Kentucky. The fact that the three hospitals for the insane and the state feeble-minded institute at Frankfort have decided to use this breed altogether in their dairies, requiring six or seven hundred cows, is a great stimulus to the breed in Kentucky.

The $350 donated to the Kentucky State Fair by the Holstein-Friesian Association is in great measure due to Stanley Milward, a member of the board of control for these institutions, and a recognition on the part of the Holstein-Friesian Association of the value such a move would be to this breed of cattle in the state. The asylums will have on exhibition at the Kentucky State Fair some of the best specimens of the black and white dairy cows to be found in the country.

Students' Judging Contest.
Commissioner M. C. Rankin has offered two sets of prizes for farmer boys in this state and for the students in the Agricultural College. The amount for farmer boys is $100, to be awarded to the young man who makes the largest score in judging livestock at the State Fair. This money to be used as scholarship to the Agricultural Department of the State University. The contestant to be required to file written opinion, with reasons therefor, on horses, cattle, swine and sheep exhibits. The prize for students judging contest amounts to $50, to be divided into $20, $15, $10 and $5. Competition will be limited to students in the State University. It is the purpose of the commissioner in offering these specials to educate the young men of the state in livestock judging. The requirements are quite liberal, and there is no reason why any bright young man in the state should not enter the contest.

The Louisville public schools will for the first time have an exhibit of the work done in the various grades upon the State Fair grounds this year during the week of Sept. 13-18. The Kentucky State Fair is getting to be more and more an educational institution, and it is hoped before many years to have a great display of the work done in the various schools of the commonwealth.

"This, My Dear, is a Tungsten Lamp"
It looks like an ordinary electric incandescent, but it is nearly three times as brilliant. The wire filament inside the bulb is made of Tungsten metal, capable of radiating much more light and much less heat than the ordinary carbon filament.
Housewives should try the G.E. Tungsten 40-watt lamp instead of the 50-watt carbon lamp now in general use. Costs one-fifth less for electricity and gives just twice as much light.
